NEW! Framing Female Lawyers by Cynthia Lucia

An analysis of women lawyer films as a genre and as a site where other film genres (film noir, maternal melodrama, thrillers, romantic comedy) intersect. Hollywood representation of female lawyers is traced from the 1949 Adam's Rib to contemporary films. 268 pp. Illus. Paperback: $23.00.

Movie Wars: How Hollywood and the Media

Limit What Films We Can See by Jonathan Rosenbaum

Rejecting the view that "cinema is dead," Rosenbaum's spirited polemic explains how corporations, studios, and distributors treat the average moviegoer with contempt and how counterforces are resisting these trends. Paperback $19.00.

Film and the Anarchist Imagination by Richard Porton

This first comprehensive survey of anarchism in film deconstructs the stereotypes while offering an authoritative account of films featuring anarchist characters and motifs. 320 pp., illus., Paperback $19.00.

Pre-Code Hollywood: Sex, Immorality and Insurrection in American Cinema, 1930-1934 by Thomas Doherty

A witty and informative survey of the racy films made before the Hollywood production code was rigidly enforced; unearths a forgotten chapter of film history. 400 pp., illus. Paperback: $22.00.

The Political Companion to American Film

Edited by Gary Crowdus; Foreword by Edward Asner

An encyclopedic collection of in-depth essays on filmmakers, genres, movements and issues bearing on the intersection of film and politics. 538 pp., illus., bibliography. Hardcover $30.00 or Paperback $22.00.
